@LOVECATCHOO

DIRECTOR'S NOTE, Eh

Do you know what the most iconic part of the Chilly Willy penguin character is?
If you said his beanie, you're right, and I also know you're not Canadian.

In Canada, it's called a tuque (rhymes with "puke"). I learned that from the legendary Canadian comedy duo Bob and Doug McKenzie on their album The Great White North. If you've never heard their version of The 12 Days of Christmas, do yourself a favor and Google it right now. Seriously.

Over the years I've worked on documentaries in Montreal, Calgary, and Vancouver. Each city gave me unforgettable stories, including crossing the border with a bunch of stoner punks on a Warped Tour tour bus in 2004. But now I find myself in Winnipeg for the first time, and I couldn't be more thrilled.

Thanks to Marc Kuegle, we have the honor of screening Sticker Movie as part of Nuit Blanche: one of the most wild, electric, and creatively unhinged nights on the continent. It's a city-wide art explosion: lights, music, bikes, stickers, and pure energy.
Marc, you da best! Thank you for bringing Sticker Movie into the fold.

This zine is our way of celebrating Canada's sticker and street art scene, and spotlighting artists from across the country who are carrying the flame in their own unique, bold, and beautifully chaotic ways.

Massive thanks to @LoveCatchoo for creating this zine's incredible cover. It's a beauty.

And of course, endless gratitude to @PMSlaps, who's helped make all seven of these zines a reality, and somehow still responds to my emails after all this time.

To every artist who slaps, trades, photographs, or just takes the time to stop and notice: you're keeping this culture alive. Thank you.

And to all my Canadian friends:
How's it going, eh?

One Love,

Will "Chilly Willy" Deloney
Director, Sticker Movie

TRP613 @TRP613

Please introduce yourself, where you are from, and what you do.
TRP613, I'm from Ottawa, Ont. I paint murals, wheatpaste and stickers.

How did you get your name?
It's pretty basic actually... Just my initials and area code of Ott. Kind of an old school homage.

Why do you love stickers?
Oh man. I have always loved stickers. They make the world less grey and less shitty. They are easy to put up and have on you.

How many stickers do you think you have made?
I have made over 50 000... I lost count...

What are your thoughts on the sticker art community?
The community is amazing. Very open and accepting. Always willing to help new artists.

What's something you wish more people understood about sticker culture?
Just why we do it...

Do you have a favorite sticker you've made?
Any of my stickers with my homie Urban Ninja... We have done a ton of collabs.

How have stickers changed your life?
I don't drink or do drugs anymore... Art and stickers specifically have changed everything.

What is your favorite food? Anything that people visiting Canada should try?
Poutine. The one and only. Or Shwarma… It's not Canadian, but it feels like it is. Lol

What's on your current playlist? (what are you listening to)
I listen to indie stuff and 90's hip hop.

My playlist is over 1000 deep. Anything from Tegan and Sara, Wu-Tang, Bon Iver, Charlotte Cardin…

If you could go out stickering with one person who would it be?
Sheperd Fairy. He's the god father of slaps.

What is your favorite Movie and your favorite book?
So many good movies… Goodfellas, Heat…

Who is your favorite sticker artist and why?
Obey. I feel like he was one of the OG's. His early years were so prolific. He just got up so much.

Any shout outs or other artists you want our readers to check out?
Urban Ninja, SketchRat, DrainWash, TbanBox. All Canadian, all putting in work!

What is something about Canada that people from other countries don't know?
It's a huge country. I think people don't realize how different we are from Americans. Obviously some similarities, but very different.

What's something unique or weird about Winnipeg that you love?)
Never been, but I hear it's super cold in the winter and mad buggy in the summer!

Have you ever been to Nuit Blanche? If you have what should people know about it?
Never been.

If your art had a Canadian spirit animal, what would it be and why?
Probably a moose or grizzly bear…

How does living in Canada influence your art?
In Canada we try to be nice. Every time I put a sticker up, I think if my placement will upset someone. We are too nice!

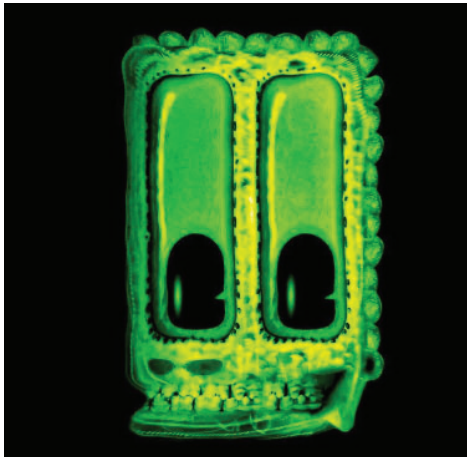
Lon Wenger @LON.WENGER

Please introduce yourself, where you are from, and what you do.
Hi! My name is Lon and I was born and raised in Edmonton, Alberta, Canada. I'm NEARLY 5 decades in and still call Edmonton home. I make stickers.

How did you get your name?
Lol. My Dad. He insists that he found it in a Baby Name Book. Lol. It was gifted to me and it's just kind of stuck. I've always liked my name. It's unique and different. Just like me. It wasn't until 21 though where I REALLY started to LOVE it. It was pointed out to me just how "AWESOME" my given name was. Thank you Marilyn.

Why do you love stickers?
They're fun. They are SO versatile and SO personal. PLUS; Did you know that you can trade them with like minded people ALL OVER the world who LOVE these little adhesive artistic treasures just as much as you do?!? Seriously; "Sticker Trades are the STUFF that dreams are made of!" I said that. It's on film.

How many stickers do you think you have made?
At this point I'm hoping it would be in the TENS OF THOUSANDS but seeing as they're all hand drawn and hand cut it's likely somewhere in the THOUSANDS. Lol. I wish EVERY Stickerhead knew their SLAPS BODYCOUNT! That would be AMAZING!



What are your thoughts on the sticker art community?
I love it! There's a welcoming and appreciation that I've never felt before… Everyone is so talented and generous. It's about UPS! Yours and mine. There's an inherent selflessness that comes with artists and the Sticker Scene is no different. There's life long friends that I'll never have the honour of meeting and it's okay because half the world over they have my back and I know that I have theirs. Good people through and through. The best artistic community there is.

What's something you wish more people understood about sticker culture?
Anyone can join. It's easy and if you're thrifty, it can be free. There's something special about baring one's soul and releasing it into the world. No strings attached. No "TOYS" in this culture. Everyone's welcome… JUST DON'T CAP SOMEONE ELSE'S SH*T! Lol.

Do you have a favorite sticker you've made?
Sometimes. It can change on the daily. My collab with @GREENTAXONOMY is pretty special. It was at the behest of my son. He's obsessed.

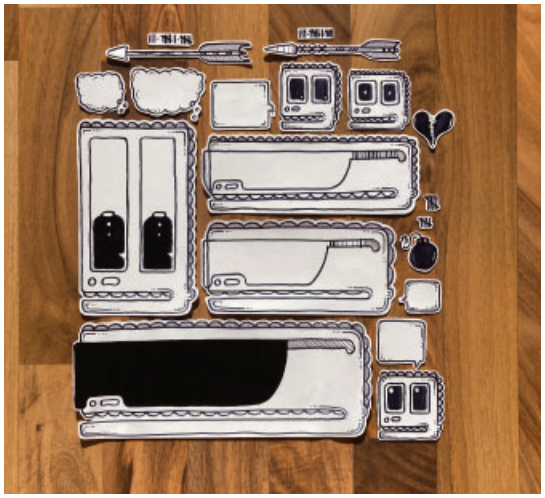
That handmade MOS TEF collab is right up there too. Every time I draw a sticker it's my favourite for that one fleeting moment… They ALL hold a special place deep in my heart.

How have stickers changed your life?
It gives me something special and creative to do every single day. I get to be 100% me. They keep me connected and grounded. They are ALWAYS worth getting up for.

What is your favorite food? Anything that people visiting Canada should try?
I love TACOS. Peeps should definitely check out Dill Pickle Chips, Ketchup Chips, Nanaimo Bars and POUTINE!

What's on your current playlist?
RUN THE JEWELS! Always.

If you could go out stickering with one person who would it be?
D*face



What is your favorite Movie and your favorite book?
Fight Club

Who is your favorite sticker artist and why?
Banksy. He has a way of making EVERYTHING he does seem fun, pertinent and important.

Any shout outs or other artists you want our readers to check out?
Anyone in my stories or on my feed are worthy of their much deserved flowers.

What is something about Canada that people from other countries don't know?
For being SO KIND, we are amazingly secretively tough and incredibly resilient.
What's something unique or weird about Winnipeg that you love? (Local pride, weird facts, weather gripes welcome.) If you haven't been to Winnipeg, what's something you love about your city or hometown?
During the Stanley Cup Playoffs and witnessing the JETS fans and their stunning WHITEOUTS. So freaking cool. Everyone in the arena is in white. It's like nothing you've ever seen... I live and breathe my EDMONTON OILERS but you've got to hand it to the JETS and their fans.

Have you ever been to Nuit Blanche? If you have what should people know about it?
Nope. That's on the Bucket List for sure though.

If your art had a Canadian spirit animal, what would it be and why?
Probably the Beaver. They put in that W-O-R-K!

How does living in Canada influence your art?
We use what's available to us and we appreciate what we have. It's important to be prolific and lead with your heart. Being GENUINE is key.

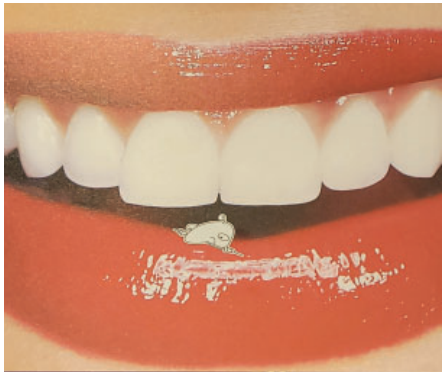
Where's Scrungo?

@Wheresscrungo

Please introduce yourself, where you are from, and what you do.
I'm Aaron. I'm a sticker artist from St. John's, Newfoundland. I primarily like to make stickers of my character Scrungo and hide him in fun and interesting places.

How did you get your name?
I have no idea where Scrungo's name came from. I just drew him and thought, "Yeah, he looks like a Scrungo..."

Why do you love stickers?
Stickers are just so fun to collect and there are so many places you can put em. Water bottles, laptops, walls, dumpsters, helmets, skateboards, etc.. The possibilities are endless!



Also, compared to traditional graffiti, I don't have to worry about messing up my linework with stickers. If I don't think my designs are good enough, I simply don't print the sticker until I'm satisfied.

How many stickers do you think you have made?
Well over 200 for sure. I only started back in 2023! I wasted soooo much money on Cricut paper. So worth it.

What are your thoughts on the sticker art community?
They're great. I got to know a lot of cool folks from the sticker community. Everybody is so supportive and there's a lot less beef in the slap community than with traditional graf. I love it

What's something you wish more people understood about sticker culture?
For me at least, I'm not necessarily here to vandalize, I wanna place art around that catches people's eyes and brings a little curiosity to their day. I hope people see Scrungo and go "Who's that little guy?" and try to see where else he's at.

I feel like a lot of sticker artists feel the same way. They just wanna bring a little joy to somebody's day

Do you have a favorite sticker you've made?
My favorite is the Jet Set Radio Scrungo (The one with the roller blades). I'm a big fan of Jet Set Radio and this sticker is one of the most dynamic and versatile stickers I've made! He fits into a lot of fun situations!

How have stickers changed your life?
Making silly stickers has gotten me back into drawing and has made me feel less afraid to make art. I used to be so concerned with being "good": having perfect perspective, proportions, shading, and composition. Of course, those things are important sometimes, but it's also good to just let loose and make something silly. Making something for yourself that you enjoy will always be more valuble than not making anything at all out of fear that it won't be perfect.

What is your favorite food? Anything that people visiting Canada should try?
I personally like pulled pork tacos quite a bit. That's not a Canadian thing, but if I were to say something Canadian.....try Mary Brown's Chicken. It's better than Popeyes. Trust me.

What's on your current playlist? (what are you listening to)
I've been kind of into rap lately. Mainly listening to Mac Miller and Tyler the Creator. Aside from that? I've also been listening to Stickerbush Symphony from Donkey Kong Country 2 on a loop a lot. David Wise is an amazing composer.

If you could go out stickering with one person who would it be?
Somebody really tall. I'm only 4' 11", so there's a lot of places I can't reach with my little legs, even with a sticker pole!

What is your favorite Movie and your favorite book?
My favorite movie is Alien. I can't think of a more perfect movie. Super tense, great aesthetics, and awesome practical effects.
My favorite book? I'm a big fan of non-fiction and my favorite is Game Over by David Sheff. It's a book that goes over the history of Nintendo from 1889 to the late 90s. It's an incredible read if you're a Nintendo fan.

Who is your favorite sticker artist and why?
There's a lot of em! Tam Shinzo, Jamingus, Raaaalph, itsallcoolman, and ricofetus to name a few! Those are just the ones that come to mind right now, but I love a lot of em! Hard to choose just one
Any shout outs or other artists you want our readers to check out?
Shout out to MackEZ. He's a fantastic lo-poly 3D artist that does really cool Y2K styled animations!

What is something about Canada that people from other countries don't know?
It's really not as cold as people think! Also, Newfoundland is a real place that exists. Not a lot of people have heard about it.

What's something unique or weird about Winnipeg that you love?
I've never been to Winnipeg, but I'll write about St. John's. It's a perfectly sized city. No need to wait hours on a subway, no crazy tall skyscrapers blocking out the sun, and it's definitely got a lot more whimsy than most captials.

Have you ever been to Nuit Blanche?
Never been there, sorry!

If your art had a Canadian spirit animal, what would it be and why?
A shrew cause they're small and they got a big schnoz like Scrungo

How does living in Canada influence your art? (From landscape to politics to winter rage...)
To be honest, it doesn't! Although, I often think about making Newfoundland themed Scrungos to send to other countries!

Marc Kuegle

WWW.MARCKUEGLE.COM

Please introduce yourself, where you are from, and what you do.
Hey, I'm Marc Kuegle, an artist and curator from Winnipeg. I work with photography and graphic design, and I like to merge the two into what I call digital collage. On top of that, I really enjoy putting together pop-ups and events that bring artists and communities together.

What's something unique or weird about Winnipeg that you love?
Winnipeg's super multicultural, so literally any kind of food you're craving, you can find. The food here is unreal. And honestly, the art and music scene is one of a kind. There's so much talent in this city. Also, Winnie the Pooh is named after Winnipeg haha.

Have you ever been to Nuit Blanche? What should people know about it?
Yeah, I've been many, many times. It's honestly one of the best nights of the year. The whole city feels alive with art. You're wandering around and suddenly a back alley or parking lot has been totally transformed into something amazing.

Why does Nuit Blanche have a special place in your heart?
For me, it's about the way it brings people together. It makes art accessible. Like, the whole city becomes an open gallery for one night. Winnipeg feels completely different during Nuit Blanche, like it's buzzing on another level.

Why are you willing to dedicate so much of your time and energy to an arts festival?
Because I've seen the impact it has. People get inspired, they connect, and they make memories. It's bigger than just my art, it's about helping create a space where other people can shine too.

How does living in Canada influence your art?
The seasons definitely shape it. Going from brutal winters to incredible summers changes how you see the world. And when I was younger, I traveled across Canada a lot, that sense of adventure stuck with me, and now it shows up in my work through travel-inspired ideas. Also the cold weather makes you want to go explore other countries haha.

If your art had a Canadian spirit animal, what would it be and why?
The Canadian goose, for sure. Always moving, always traveling, but still tied to a sense of home. That's pretty much how I see my art.

What is something about Canada that people from other countries don't know?
Just how massive and different it is. You drive for hours and it feels like you're in a totally new country, prairies, mountains, northern lakes, even deserts. And yeah, people already know this... but it's true, Canadians are usually really, really nice, haha.

What is your favorite food? Anything that people visiting Canada should try?
Since Canada's so multicultural, you can get basically anything here. But if it's your first time visiting, you've gotta try poutine, butter tarts, bannock, and if you're in Winnipeg, honey dill sauce. That's our thing. Also fun fact, Pizza Pops were created in Winnipeg.

Why do you love stickers?
Stickers are just fun. They're quick, accessible, and anyone can make them or trade them. It's like turning a whole city into an art gallery. I love traveling, putting my own stickers up, and spotting my friends' stuff. I've been into stickers since I was a kid skateboarding, it's always been part of that culture for me.

Graffiti Gallery is part of Graffiti Art Programming Inc., a not-for-profit community youth art organization located in the core area of Winnipeg. It uses art as a tool for community development, social change, and individual growth. The gallery hosts community urban art exhibits by local, Canadian and international artists. The satellite gallery located at The Skate Plaza at The Forks features an additional six panels without the restriction of operating hours. The st.Art Program offers free after-school and summer programming for children and youth. Every visit to Graffiti Gallery is unique; the walls are an evolving urban canvas.'

What are your thoughts on the sticker art community?
It's honestly one of the most supportive art communities I've been part of. People share, trade, and push each other up. It's less about competition and more about connection. I love traveling and seeing my friends' stickers around the world.

What's something you wish more people understood about sticker culture?
That it's not just "slapping something on a wall." It's storytelling, it's connection, and it's a way of leaving little pieces of yourself in the world.

Do you have a favorite sticker you've made?
Yeah, my Peace Sign sticker. It was only my second one ever, but it really stuck, people love it and it still feels special to me.

How have stickers changed your life?
Big time. I've made so many new friends and even done collaborations through sticker trades. My stickers have ended up in places I've never even been, which is pretty wild to think about.

What's on your current playlist?
I was just in Mexico City and caught Le Youth, so I've been playing him a lot lately. Mr. Kitty is always in rotation too. Winnipeg has so many good local acts that I have on rotation too. Amos the Kid, Boy Golden, Begonia, The Lytics. Just to shout out a few.

If you could go out stickering with one person who would it be and why?
That's tough! I just missed DeeLaRuZe in Toronto, and she's a legend in the sticker community. I'd love to kick it with her. Definitely RX Skulls too.

What is your favorite Movie and your favorite book?
Favorite movie has to be Snatch. I've loved it since it came out, I even have a framed poster of it in my studio. Book-wise, I don't read a ton, but I'd say E Pluribus Venom by Shepard Fairey. I go back to it a lot for inspiration. It's an art book, but it still counts haha.

Who is your favorite sticker artist and why?
I've got a ton of respect for Shepard Fairey and what he's built. In the sticker world specifically, there are way too many to name, but I'd say Mue Bon from Thailand. His work is everywhere. I've also been really into Marione lately. Love the country themed "fish invasion" stickers.

Any shout outs or other artists you want our readers to check out?
For sure, Zac Ironstand and Pink Panda, two amazing Winnipeg artists I've been lucky to feature in my pop-ups. Also Mumbot and all the artists in the Ghost Club. They're doing such cool things. And my good buddy TU!! from Thailand.

@LOVECATCHOO

Please introduce yourself, where you are from, and what you do.
hello my name is catchoo an artist from canada i draw & paint supercute rebellious characters that live on the street.

How did you get your name?
pronounced "cat-chew" it's my initials cat plus "choo" the phonetic of my last name squished into one word and lowercase it's simple personal and rebellious.

Why do you love stickers?
i've loved stickers since i was a kid always collecting, trading, making my own and loved the ones i got as rewards. there's something magical about tiny, sticky pieces of art you can stick anywhere.

How many stickers do you think you have made?
over my lifetime? probably thousands enough to cover a small town in sticky chaos :)

What are your thoughts on the sticker art community?
it's pure creative fun being a part of a global sticker art community most are super supportive, friendly and wildly talented. everyone's just out here sharing little pieces of themselves in a sticky format and i love it.

What's something you wish more people understood about sticker culture?
that it's more than "just stickers" it's storytelling, connection and identity you can slap anywhere. warning it's addictive.

Do you have a favorite sticker you've made?
yes my black happy heart it's simple, easy to put up, lasts a while, comes in different sizes and it's just meant to quietly spread love and happiness wherever it lands.

How have stickers changed your life?
stickers turned my art into something people could see have share and inspire to make their own. getting them up on the streets over the past few years changed everything: walking around hunting new spots, discovering other people's stickers, and leaving my own has made every day an adventure and connected me with people i never would've met otherwise.

What is your favorite food? Anything that people visiting Canada should try?
poutine squeaky gooey cheesy salty comfort food.

What's on your current playlist? (what are you listening to) all of it! i play my music on shuffle

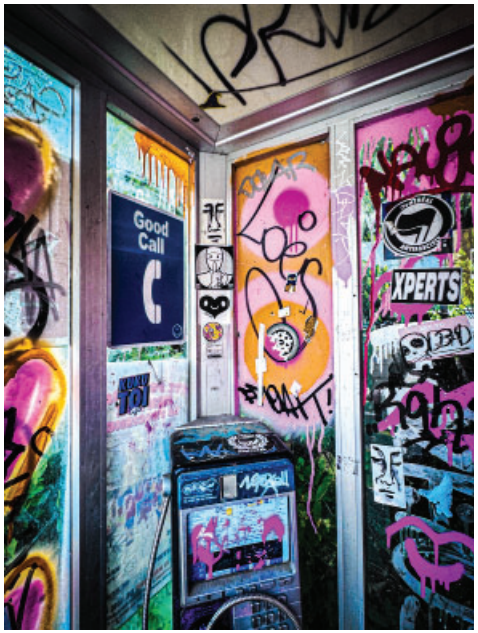
If you could go out stickering with one person who would it be?
hmmm i don't have anyone in mind but it be supercool if i was stickering somewhere and stumbled on a fun sticker person, vibing instantly and then spent the day wandering streets, chatting, trading and slapping.

What is your favorite Movie and your favorite book?
omg i have too many to list here.....

Who is your favorite sticker artist and why?
there's too many i adore but i love seeing artists who are really getting out there with a playful spirit and completely unapologetic.

Any shout outs or other artists you want our readers to check out?
shoutout to everyone in the sticker community old-school legends, new creators, and everyone leaving tiny pieces of themselves around the world. you keep the streets alive and chaotic in the best way.



What is something about Canada that people from other countries don't know?
beyond maple syrup snow and beavers canada's streets and cities have a lot of amazing art, stickers and underground culture waiting to be discovered if you know where to look.

What's something unique or weird about Winnipeg that you love?
i haven't been to winnipeg yet but i hear it's cold hahah

Have you ever been to Nuit Blanche? If you have what should people know about it?
nope

If your art had a Canadian spirit animal, what would it be and why?
my art would be a raccoon cute, curious, mischievous, messy but clever and roaming the streets leaving its mark everywhere.

How does living in Canada influence your art? (From landscape to politics to winter rage...)
it's all the little things around me that influence me and definitely the canadian seasons dictate whether i'm outside more or doing art indoors.

Abe Lincoln Jr.

@yoitsabejr

Please introduce yourself, where you are from, and what you do.
I'm Abe Lincoln Jr. I'm a street artist in NYC going on 20 years. My shit has been a lot of places. The Smithsonian, published in tons of urban art books, I collabed with Converse and Star Wars and a lot of dead youth culture brands.

How did you get your name?
It's a long ass story but I started a hardcore band called Gettysburg Express where I'd dress up like Abe Lincoln and sing hardcore songs about the civil war.

Why do you love stickers?
Stickers are my first love. I got introduced to vandalism thru skateboard stickers you'd slap up on the back of a stop sign. I've been doing stickers forever and I'll never quit doing em'. To me every sticker is a tiny fuck you.

How many stickers do you think you have made?
A bajillion at this point.

What are your thoughts on the sticker art community?
It's awesome! So many talented artists who rep one another and support each other as best we can.

What's something you wish more people understood about sticker culture?
Who cares? fuck em!

Do you have a favorite sticker you've made?
Yeah the one I sent you that says "pettyluyah". I feel like it's the best sticker line wise I've ever made.

How have stickers changed your life?
If not for stickers I wouldn't have gotten into street art and it's what I fucking do. It's my life's work. Even if I think street art sucks sometimes (claim jumpers, art school students) it's always new and rn there's a LOT of great stickers out there.

What is your favorite food? Anything that people visiting Canada should try?
Tacos. Go to that dirty movie theater in Montreal but don't eat a bagel there it's mad unsanitary.

What's on your current playlist? (what are you listening to)
Old School RnB current list
George Benson, Ce Ce Peniston, Brothers Johnson,Pointer Sisters, Labelle, shit tons of stuff

Who is your favorite sticker artist and why?
That's like picking your favorite child..,

Any shout outs or other artists you want our readers to check out?
@kleverkills @jame_gaw @meshipeshi @_whups @paintboogers @nandos.art @mcaevildesign @chrisrwk

What is something about Canada that people from other countries don't know?
Idk I'm in brooklyn

What's something unique or weird about Winnipeg that you love?
I love the amount of street artists doing their thing. So many rad artists here.

If your art had a Canadian spirit animal, what would it be and why?
Most people are going to go hard and say Wolverine but that's kinda corny. I go for the puffin.
I like its beak and color combo.

Urban Ninja

@URBANNINJASQUADRON

Please introduce yourself, where you are from, and what you do.
Hey, I'm Urban Ninja. I hail from Toronto and I make stickers and posters that I put up in the streets.

How did you get your name?
Always had a love for ninjas and since I live in a city ... I put the the two together and BAM! ... my name was born.

Why do you love stickers?
I'm constantly making art and stickers is just a great way to show it off.

How many stickers do you think you have made?
Too many to count! But I'm definitely way over 100 ... that's for sure.

What are your thoughts on the sticker art community?
A great, supportive community. Everyone is so nice and very positive.

What's something you wish more people understood about sticker culture?
We put stickers up to beautify our surroundings. We have no intentions on being destructive to urban settings. We just want to show our art to the world.

Do you have a favorite sticker you've made?
At the moment I like my Mermaid Ninja ... it's a funny stand alone image.

How have stickers changed your life?
Stickers have always kept me being creative. Every drawing I make pretty much turns into a sticker.

What is your favorite food? Anything that people visiting Canada should try?
I love curry!!! I love all forms of curry from Japanese to Thai to Indian!!! I love them all! If you're coming to Canada ... try the poutine.

What's on your current playlist?
I went backwards ... listening to a lot of funk, soul and R&B. Just something about it ... so creative in the singing and in the instruments. Also it's great to hear songs where hip hop has sampled from.

If you could go out stickering with one person who would it be?
The person who I always go stickering with my homie SketchRat.

What is your favorite Movie and your favorite book?
Favourite movie hands down is The Big Lebowski … the characters are so wacky I love it.
As for favourite book … does comic books count? Love the series Stray Bullets … a great ensemble of messed up characters … totally worth a check out.

Who is your favorite sticker artist and why?
Probably would have to go to City Kitty Street … for his down to earth attitude and for putting up other peoples stickers where ever he goes. Very knowledgeable of the sticker scene and he pretty much knows everyone.

Any shout outs or other artists you want our readers to check out?
My Visual Noise homies TRP & SketchRat. Hanging with these punks is so much fun. Other homies AskWhy, catchoo, Sentient Cookie, Lippy & SketchNate. All decent folks.

What is something about Canada that people from other countries don't know?
Our taxes are hidden on products. So when tourists buy things they are shocked & upset to be charged with hidden fees. Canadians are so use to it I just feel sorry for people who are not from here.

What's something unique or weird about Winnipeg that you love?
I have never been … would love to go … I have friends there though!

Have you ever been to Nuit Blanche? If you have what should people know about it?
I've been to Nuit Blanche in Toronto and sometimes it's good to check it out with a small group. It's just easier to maneuver to see the art than with a larger group.

If your art had a Canadian spirit animal, what would it be and why?
My art spirit animal would probably be a cat … they're great sneaky ninjas.

How does living in Canada influence your art?
Canada's influence on my art would have to be the fun positive humour.

Vinny.c.

VECONE

@SHERRIIRONSTAND

Please introduce yourself, where you are from, and what you do.
Vinny.c. from Winnipeg,Canada but live in Thunder Bay,Ontario,Canada. Im a retired tattoo artist but have worked many unfulfilling jobs throughout my life.

How did you get your name?
My name is simply my initials to my real name vinny.edward.c. with the number one at the end. I've gone by this name since the very early 1990's if not 1990 exactly.

Why do you love stickers?
I've always loved stickers since I can remember. Growing up in the 1980's there was always tons of novelty sticker packs such as garbage pail kids,wacky packs,etc. I collected those and still do. As an artist,stickers just became the obvious choice to draw on. The people ive met in this scene or culture has definitely kept me in the sticker scene as well. I've met the coolest people and it keeps me loving the sticker culture.

How many stickers do you think you have made?
Alot,thousands even though it takes me awhile to get drawings finished.

What are your thoughts on the sticker art community?
Super rad community of people, but it's tough living far away from the people ive become close to as this community seems to be exclusively on Instagram,I don't ever get to meet anyone in real life. So that can get frustrating. But we're a pretty welcoming community.

What's something you wish more people understood about sticker culture?
I wish more people understood that the majority of us are adults. I think alot of people think we are a bunch of kids when everyone i know is either in their 30's or my age ,in the 50 plus age range. Shit, I'm getting old.

Do you have a favorite sticker you've made?
No, it's quite a repetitive art form
So my stickers kind of always look the same just with different colors.

How have stickers changed your life?
Stickers have changed my life completely. I'd never been on social media in my life until I started this on Instagram. I went from never owning a cell phone in my life to using one every day. I started doing live sticker pack openings, that is something I never thought I'd be doing.

What is your favorite food? Anything that people visiting Canada should try?
No favorite food, ill eat just about anything and like it.

What's on your current playlist?
Ha,that's funny. I buy alot of music,so im always listening to it. I'll tell you what ive recently bought to give you an idea.
Fugazi*steady diet of nothing and repeater.
Deicide*deicide(self*titled)
3rd bass*the cactus album.
Gatecreeper*Sonoran deprivation.
Demolition hammer*epidemic of violence.

If you could go out stickering with one person who would it be?
I couldn't name just one person. It would have to be a bunch of people.

What is your favorite Movie and your favorite book?
Wizard of Oz for a movie. I've read so many books in jail it's not even funny, so I really don't have a favorite book. Lord of the rings is so.ething ive read many times a day still love.

Who is your favorite sticker artist and why?
Again,I like so many artists equally itvwould be impossible to answer.

Any shout outs or other artists you want our readers to check out?
Shout out to everyone who has supported my Instagram page,everyone im in a crew with,you know who you are.

What is something about Canada that people from other countries don't know?
People from the states call TORONTO,"toron-To". We don't pronounce the second "T", for us it's "TORONO" no "T".

What's something unique or weird about Winnipeg that you love? (Local pride, weird facts, weather gripes)
I grew up in Winnipeg and always move back there, but there's nothing really special or unique about the place. Its definitely a rowdy city and probably city most people wouldn't come to visit. Alot of gang stuff and violence in Winnipeg.

Have you ever been to Nuit Blanche? If you have what should people know about it?
Never.

If your art had a Canadian spirit animal, what would it be and why?
An elephant. Strong,smart, heavy family protection.

How does living in Canada influence your art? (From landscape to politics to winter rage...)
It doesn't, I don't think. Winter socks and it gets so cold out here, no ones going out to put up stickers. They don't stick in the extreme cold as there is a layer of frost over everything.

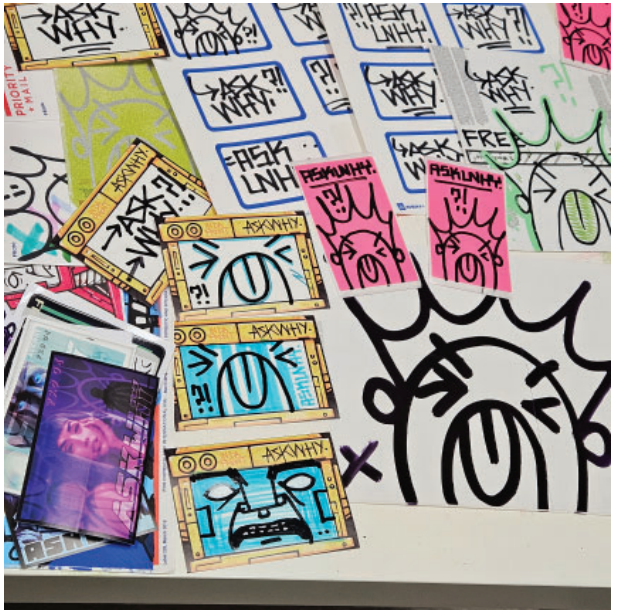
ask why

@ASK WHY

Please introduce yourself, where you are from, and what you do.
askwhy. ask why. ask why?!
Toronto, Canada
i make stickers.

How did you get your name?
it started as slogans that i would pair my little character, stuff like "no more lies" / "free your mind" / "ask why" ... i thought i was being provocative.. i wanted to chose something that i felt was impactful in getting people to think and react. i wanted to incite critical thinking, so that people could come to terms with some of the harsh realities of our modern day society. know yourself, know where you stand and why you think a certain way.

Why do you love stickers?
there's a lot of reasons. i love getting sticker packs in the mail, how each pack is unique and a reflection of the sending artist. i love collaborating on hand drawn sticker art. the chain mail of sending collabs around, and seeing them pop up again in a couple of years with a bunch of dope artists on it. i love peeling the backs off. executing a perfect stick... i love sharing my collection with the public. i love stickers in public, seeing all the names that have come through. i love the impermanence of street stickers. the constantly changing landscape of street art and graffiti. the layers... the peeling, the cracking. the cute shit, the hardcore stuff. the political nature of some of the slaps. i love how the right placement of a sticker can pull a person out of their day to day, and possibly impact their life... it's fun stuff.



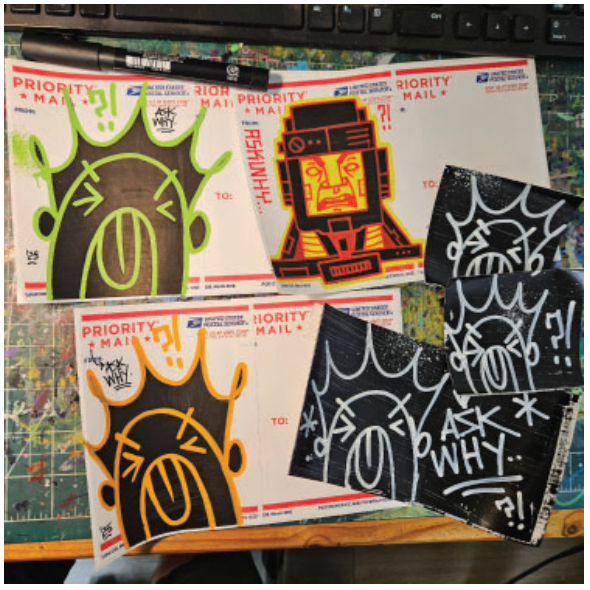
How many stickers do you think you have made?
couldn't say, thousands ?

What are your thoughts on the sticker art community?
i love the community. mostly for me, it started online. you need that online aspect to connect with a lot of the artists around the world, so i feel like there's a big international aspect to it for me. but also, i would meet and connect with local community in Toronto, and around Canada, and it's cool. all different types of people, but all with a love for stickers, for whatever reasons. you got the art kids, you got the graff heads, there's layers of overlaps with the local community. but it's all good, and mostly supportive. it's a great way to connect with people and support each other's art.

What's something you wish more people understood about sticker culture?
nothing really.

Do you have a favorite sticker you've made?
i do, i have this one character that i drew on a large eggshell sticker.. i really like it, so i don't want to slap it. but i always have it on me, looking for the perfect spot, but then i'm too picky or always use a different one.

How have stickers changed your life?
for me, i found a quick way to continue to make art, when i didn't have enough time to paint, or make detailed digital illustrations. it was a good way to blow off steam also, and so it provided an outlet, bringing peace and focus into my life at the time.



What is your favorite food? Anything that people visiting Canada should try?
pizza. depends where you go. canada's pretty big. food wise? that depends on where you go...

What's on your current playlist? (what are you listening to) my daily mix 2 includes aesop rock, black thought, lorn ... some liquid drum'n'bass, some lo-fi deep house.

If you could go out stickering with one person who would it be?
my cousin, who's down in ecuador now, but we need to link back up. shout out kawsay.

What is your favorite Movie and your favorite book?
movie, can i say 2, the blade runner duo. if i had to pick one, i'd pick the 2049. fav book would also be Do Androids Dream of Electric Sheep? or Neuromancer

Who is your favorite sticker artist and why?
it changes, because there are so many of em, but right now, i'm really liking the work of ozokoh, a toronto artist. ozokoh's got a lot of style, and dope hand drawn stuff. also i just connect with their depiction of the duality of life and society, and so not only on an aesthetic level, but i like the ideas written and illustrated into the work. also the fact that you can see these out in public spaces, all around toronto, i run into a lot of em.

Any shout outs or other artists you want our readers to check out?
it's hard to say, there are so many dope artists, current and older heads that are still dope. toronto has a lot of talent. i would say come visit and check it out for yourself.

What is something about Canada that people from other countries don't know?
probably stuff about the weather and the government.

What's something unique or weird about Winnipeg that you love?
sorry to say i haven't actually been to winnipeg, but i'd like to visit. what time of year is good?

Have you ever been to Nuit Blanche? If you have what should people know about it?
i haven't been.

If your art had a Canadian spirit animal.
a loon always puts me in touch with nature and allows me to reset my mind and body.

How does living in Canada influence your art? (From landscape to politics to winter rage...)
living in toronto definitely informs some of the political aspect. i feel like also the weather here, in toronto, has pretty distinct and extreme seasons, so that changes the energy levels, the time at home, amount of social time. i guess that's daily life anywhere though, you just have to continue to create.
